JAP IMMIGRANTS IN TRANSIT FROM VESSEL TO QUARANTINE

(Advertiser Photo.)

SCOW PIONEER LOADED TO THE RAILS WITH IMMIGRANTS.

The steam scow Pioneer, owned by Hackfeld & Co., and which is used in transporting Japanese emigrants from the Oriental liners at the Quarantine wharf to Quarantine pier is a well known vessel in Honolulu harbor life, but strangers coming in on the steamers from the Orient take a great deal of interest in its operations.

Hundreds of people in custody of the immigration officials are loaded from the vessel into the scow. All sorts of baggage is also piled aboard, and as the scow leaves the sides of the steamers one usually sees, in small boats around it, parties of local Japanese who are endeavoring to shout some word of greeting or inquiry to relatives or friends who arrive on the steamer and are being transferred to Quarantine Island.

MET SQUALLS OFF DIAMOND HEAD

Bark Andrew Welch Had a Hard Night When Nearing Honolulu.

The bark Andrew Welch, Captain Drew, arrived from San Francisco at noon yesterday, having experienced a bad tussle with the elements off Diamond Head Saturday night. The vessel previously had light winds all the way and so required twenty-two days for the trip. She has a full cargo of general merchandise, some of it being on deck. Among the cargo is a shipment of fine potatoes, amounting to 500 bags.

At 4 o'clock on Saturday afternoon the bark was sighted off Diamond Head, but the winds were so light that she was unable to make the anchorage and so spent a very bad night. After the sun went down the vessel had a battle against continuous squalls. It was so dark that Captain Drew was unable to make the anchorage, and so had to beat around during the entire night, and was not brought into port until noon yesterday.

Miss Florence, a returning Honolulu, was the only passenger brought by the vessel.

Alexander Found Poor Wind.

The schooner S. T. Alexander which was to have sailed for Eureka on Saturday did not get away until Sunday owing to the poor winds prevailing outside and she struck hard luck when she was towed out on Sunday morning for she found but light and changeable winds. She was beating around off port all day and when darkness set in last night was not over seven miles off port.

The Steamer Alameda.

Although the San Francisco newspapers received by the last mail stated that the present trip of the Alameda would be her last one to this port as a coal burner, it is likely that she will make one and perhaps two more trips before she is laid up for the installation of the oil burners. The vessel will sail as usual at noon on Wednesday for San Francisco.

Disguise Will Have to be Good.

"If S. Oto, the cook of the Fred J. Woods, on which schooner Captain Jacobson was murdered, gets a job on any vessel leaving Honolulu he must be very well disguised," said a captain yesterday. "For I do not think any skipper would knowingly take that man on his vessel after hearing the story of the crime committed on the Woods."

Building Wharf Sheds.

Carpenters are now at work constructing the big sheds that are to line the new Bishop Estate wharves. When completed they will be the best wharf sheds in the port.

tives or friends who arrive on the steamer and are being transferred to Quarantine Island.

In the smallest sort of a boat one can see a couple of Japs. There is a big box built into the middle of their boat, and this being filled with soda water in bottles, they endeavor to get alongside the scow to sell it to the new arrivals.

An old native, in a boat loaded with sugar cane, is alongside the steamer selling his boatload at 10 cents a cane—for the steerage people do love a bit of the sweetness that can be sucked from the cane.

But it is the Japs in the boats who furnish the "scenes." Perhaps one of

IMPORTS CLEARED ON A SUNDAY

Japs Needed Sake Which Arrived on the Steamship Gaelic.

An emperor's birthday and no sake to celebrate it with would be about as disagreeable to Japanese as a Christmas in New England without any cranberries and cider. The Japs were nearly confronted with such a situation as this owing to the fact that the Korea did not make a call here on her last trip to the Coast from the Orient, and for this reason the coming of the Gaelic on Saturday, with a monster cargo of 1,500 tons of Japanese goods for this port, was gladly welcomed by the Jap merchants. Although the O. and O. liner reached the wharf early Saturday morning, she could not get all her goods discharged until late in the night, and this did not enable the Jap merchants to get them through the Customs.

As today is a holiday for the Japs they would not have any opportunity to get the big supply of provisions and sake, so Collector Stackable remedied the difficulty by issuing special permits, allowing the Japanese to get the goods, or a portion of them, away on Sunday forenoon. About 400 tubs of sake were carted from the wharf, and quite a large quantity of Japanese provisions.

The Gaelic's cargo was the largest that has been brought to this port in years from a Japanese port, and her discharge of 1,500 tons of freight during one working day and a night may almost be regarded as a record. Although her freight was large, her passenger list was correspondingly small. She departed for San Francisco at 6:55 o'clock yesterday morning.

No News for Andromeda.

The last mail brought no news from the Norwegian owners of the dismantled bark Andromeda as to what disposition should be made of the vessel here. Captain Rotter is also waiting for the ship's mail from Eureka. He says that the officials up that way must be slow as he sent word to them nearly six weeks ago that he wished to have the mail sent to Honolulu, and it has not arrived.

Worked Cargo All Day.

The steamer Alameda brought two thousand tons of cargo from the coast on her last trip and stevedores were at work all day Sunday in discharging this, so that the Oceanic wharf, usually quiet, was a quite a busy place yesterday.

Transport Sumner Sailed.

The transport Sumner sailed for San Francisco at 6:30 o'clock Sunday morning. As her departure was an early one there were but few people at the wharf at the time.

them has a wife just arriving from Japan. He has saved for months in order to pay her way to Hawaii. He stands in his boat shouting her name as loudly as possible, and after she is finally fished out of the confused mass of humanity and gets to the rail the Jap has lost all his excitement. He is a serene little fellow then, and bows low to his lady. There are a few glad greetings, and then the man gets down to business again, and shouts instructions as to what the couple will do, and where they will go to work. He tells her where he will meet her when she is released from the island, and then, with little ceremony, rows back to the wharves.

"MICKIE" MEETS THE STEAMERS

And Tries to "Rescue" the Boys Who Are in Swimming.

Most everyone who visits the wharves on steamer days knows "Mickie." The party mentioned is not a longshoreman or a gangplank guard. He is an old, white-colored dog, owned by Mr. Rice of the Metropole. A steamer never comes in without this old dog trying to "rescue" one of the native boys when he sees them swimming near the wharves, and in turn the poor old dog has to be rescued by the lads, who usually extract a quarter from Mr. Rice for the service.

The old dog seems to be greatly afraid of the water, and when a boy starts to jump from the wharf he sets up a great howl. He fears that the boy may drown, and jumping in after him, grabs hold of some portion of his bathing suit. When the lad shows the dog that he is in no danger of drowning and rapidly swims away from him, "Mickie" loses heart and tries to swim back to the wharf. The old dog is lacking in strength, though, and the boys always have to get hold of his collar and drag him through the water to the wharf, where they hold him until the twenty-five cent piece is forthcoming from his owner.

Next Mail From the Coast.

The Jap liner America Maru is due from San Francisco late Wednesday afternoon or evening. She will have mail up to and including October 30th.

Shipping Notes.

Purser Friel reports fine weather on Kauai.

The steamer Waialeale encountered fine weather in the channel on both her up and down trip to Kilauea.

The steamer Noeau brought a cargo of mill machinery for the Honolulu Iron Works from Kukuiahae on Saturday. The steamer W. G. Hall, brought the following freight from Kauai ports on Sunday morning: twenty-seven hides, one boiler for Oahu railway, one horse, and forty pigs.

IN THE GOOD OLD FASHIONED DAYS.

Powdered Wigs Formed an Important Adjunct to a Gentleman's Apparel.

It is safe to say that the majority of bald men of today would gladly revive the old, dignified custom if they could. But, they can do the next best thing to it; that is, to revive the growth of the hair nature gave them.

In cases where the hair root or hair bulb has not been completely destroyed by parasites that infest it, Newbro's Herpicide will do wonders in the way of stimulating the growth of lifeless and falling hair. Destroy the cause, you remove the effect. That is the successful mission of Herpicide.
